CORRECT'S WEEKLY POLITICAL REGISTER.

Vol. 62-No. 3.7 LONDON, SATURDAY, Arest 14, 1827. [Price la.

Published every Saturday Marsing, at Seven i Check.

"They flattered him with their mouth, and lied." Postin krrnin. v. 36.

DUKE OF YORK.

the fair means of decent existence to occupy my pages, and the time every man of considerable pro- relative to the dead. But, there Kennington, Mr. April, 1827. perty, if he be also a man of SERING the situation of public sense, is, and must be, in a conaffairs of this country at this time; tinual state of anxiety with regard seeing how many subjects there to the fate of that property, and are of great and pressing public with regard to children and other interest: seeing, in short, that dependants, for whom that prothose of us who are alive, cannot, perty is intended to provide; seeing in a much greater proportion than these things, I have felt, and I one out of twenty, say that he has still feel, the greatest reluctance within his reach; seeing that of my readers, by observations, are occasions, when it is abso- dead has a natural and inevitable lutely necessary, for the sake of tendency to make the mass of the survivors, to speak of those mankind believe, that it signifies who are no more. One of these occasions now presents itself, and that you are sure of posthumous extorts from me, that which I am fame, if you do but so act, as to about to write. If that which is said of the dead, could do no mischief to the living; if it be not calculated to give a wrong bias to men's minds; in such case, as that which is said of the dead can do no harm to the living, these latter may well pass it by without notice. But, when the contrary is manifestly the case; when that which is said of the dead is clearly calculated to mislead the mass of the nation; to make it believe that which is not true; to induce men to trust to some other means of obtaining high character, than the means to be found in their integrity, valour, public spirit, and other virtues; when that which is said of the dead, naturally tends to make men disregard the use of counteract it. the only means by which high character ought to be maintained; any part of the Duke's character not what you do during your life; be sure to provide yourself with eulogists after your death : when that which is said of the dead has and must have this tendency, then the man, who is so situated as to be able to make a probably successful effort, in counteracting that which is said of the dead, may, perhaps, if he hold his peace, be neither knave nor coward; but, it would be full as well for his country if he were both.

Therefore, clear as it is to me, that that which has been said, written, and published, relative to the late Duke of York, has, and inevitably must have, this mischievous tendency, I should be ashamed of myself, if I did not, at any rate, make an effort to

I am not disposed to criticise when that which is said of the or conduct, in a manner, which could possibly merit the epithet about: they think to imitate the severe. that I expose the baseness of the flatterers of his memory, without, however, insinuating, that he himself, would have approved by anticipation of such immeasurable baseness. The newspapers of England are, unquestionably, the vilest of all human productions; but, in this case, they have been more vile even than usual. They have gone beyond the settled infamy of their character. Their columns are always open for sale, and the reptiles who have filled them in this case have been dealers, to a greater extent, than perhaps was ever before known in the whole of the history of this species of traffic. They have represented the object of their eulogiums as every thing perfect in man; particularly as a saint and a hero. They have represented him as the most humane, the most upright, the most industrious, the most public spirited of mortal men. These base flatterers think, that

But, justice demands, Innkeepers of Oxford; that is to say, " make the living pay for the dead." They ought certainly not to succeed in so villanous an enterprise, but, their success or their failure, is a mere trifle, compared with the mischievous effect, that their base and lying praises are calculated to have upon the nation at large, and particularly upon those young men, who are now coming upon the stage, and whose opinions and principles must eventually have so great an effect on the happiness or misery of the nation. If these praises of the DUKE of YORK be suffered to pass without comment, who shall say that a young man will do wrong if he endeavour, or, permit himself to imitate the life and actions of the DUKE of YORK? If these praises be proper, then the Duke is a model for all men to imitate. Would it, then, be a good thing, if all men were to imitate the DUKE of YORK? All men, literally speaking, cannot; they know very well what they are for all men are not Dukes; nor, imitate his ROYAL HIGHNESS in this capacity? I do not pretend to say, what the Duke's debts are, or are not. I copy the following paragraph from the Morning Chronicle of to-day.

"We are sorry to learn that "the affairs of the DUKE of YORK " are likely to turn out very indif-"ferent as respects the simple " contract creditors—hardly one " shilling in the pound being likely " to fall to their share. This has " not arisen from any failure in the " sales of property that have taken " place, which have realised full " as much as was expected, but " from the immense amount of " liens on that property, and of "bona fide bond securities, all of military commanders, but all men "which must be satisfied before are, or are liable to be, husbands: "the other creditors are paid a and, would it be a good thing if, " farthing. These bonds, it is in that capacity, all men were to " said, exceed two hundred thou-" sand pounds"!

are they in many other situations | This may be false; and, as I in which this DUKE was. But all find it in a newspaper, it is but fair men have dealings and contracts to suppose that it is; but, if it be with their fellow-subjects; and, but a nineteen twentieth part of the would it be good for all men to truth, let me ask whether this is an example to hold up to the nation, the debtor having had, constantly, during his whole lifetime. an income so great, that it is impossible for common men to conceive, by what means it could be expended. Here were no mischances, no accidents, no failure in mercantile enterprize, no event to drive the debtor from the regular receipt of his enormous income, the amount of which he always knew, and always was sure regularly to receive. What excuse, therefore, for debt at all; and what answer to give to those numerous persons who must be sufferers from such debt?

> All men are not princes and imitate the DUKE of YORK? I will allude to no rumours; I will profligate, these most mercenary ruffians of the press proclaim him to the nation as a sort of Saint, shall I not refer my readers to the evidence taken before the house of Commons in the year 1809 ? Shall I not bid them read that evidence? Shall I not bid them look at the proof relative to the open, the undisguised connexion with MOTHER CLARKE, while the DUKE had living, a wife, the daughter of a king, the sister of a king, a woman of unimpeachable character in all respects; a woman remarkable for the gentleness of her manners, and for all those qualities and characteristics which made it cruel to the last degree. to inflict a sting in her bosom. Had she been otherwise than strictly virtuous; had she been a virago; had she been a notorious squanderer; wasting the substance of her husband : had she been any of these, less, and much less would proceed upon no scandalous sto- have been said on the subject. ries; nothing like cant shall mark She was none of them, and her what I have to say of the DUKE of gentleness, and regard for her York: but, when I hear these husband's character and feelings was so great, that she made it a point of appearing in public with him, at a moment when all the world were turning their backs upon him, though the cause of his disgrace was that very connexion which was calculated to inspire her with the most anxious desire to obtain revenge. One cannot tell any thing about the mere personal attachments in such case; but the DUCHESS of YORK had to bear the pity, not only of this nation, but of a great part of the civilized world; and pity is a thing which we do not endure very patiently, particularly when we are in situations, where the very existence of it implies that we are in a fallen state. I scorn, as I always did scorn, cant, upon the subject of MOTHER CLARKE; but, let the eulogists of the DUKE of YORK tell us plainly, if they dare, that the man who was the subject of the investigation of 1809, and the subject of the votes of the House of fians are, generally speaking, adit would be a good thing, for all as a husband: which, be it observed, is one, at any rate, of the great capacities of human life

Perhaps those eulogists are of opinion, that to pursue that which is generally called gaming has nothing amiss in it. Certainly the thing is common enough, and all that we have heard, relative to this subject, as far as the DUKE was concerned, may possibly be false. If so, however, these eulogists have shown themselves to be very stupid or very insincere friends; for, they have made no attempt to wipe from his memory, that which was by no means an object of admiration with the wise and virtuous part of the people. They seem to me to have been sensible they were writing a romance, or they would, at any rate. have attempted to palliate the ractic so generally imputed to the Duke. The newspaper ruf-

Commons in that year; let those dicted to this practice themselves. eulogists tell us, if they dare, that as far as their means will allow them: it is a practice congenial men to imitate the DUKE of YORK with the natural turn of their minds: they are penned up amidst swarms of men, and they naturally resort to stimulants of this kind. But, this is not the case with the nation at large: this is not the case with a far greater part of persons in the middle rank of life, nor is it the case with the far greater part of those who move in a higher sphere. These eulogists, then; these lavishers of indiscriminating praise, must, to be consistent, boldly assert that it would be a good thing, if every one followed the example of the Duke in this practice, so generally, whether justly or unjustly, imputed to to inflict at sting in her bo.mid

> For my part, I can discover nothing "tangible" in this praise bestowed upon the DUKE. CHARLES YORKE very indiscreetly called upon WARDLE to bring forward his charges against the DUKE in a

" tangible shape." That worthy | tohim), as cheerfully and diligently sinecure placeman, soon found the shape tangible enough. I have endeavoured to find something equally tangible in the praises bestowed upon the DUKE; but have been enabled to find nothing of the kind. A monstrous deal about his filial affection, forgetting, I suppose, that he had a grant of 10,000l. a year (in addition to all his other sources of enormous income), merely for the trouble of visiting his aged father once in a week or ten days! How much better it would have been if these injudicious friends had been sensible and honest: if, by way of apology or excuse for the taking of this great sum from the nation, they had said, that the DUKE stood in need of the money, and that (which I really suppose to be the truth, because it is against nature to suppose the contrary), if he had no money at all for doing it, he would have watched over his father (who, by-the-bye, had been ex Secretary of State and present as if he had been allowed for his trouble a million a year. At any rate, however, he did receive the 10,000l. a year, until the death of his father; and, be it remarked, that the amount so received by him, now makes part of that enormous debt, which is pressing this people to the earth; which makes millions rise every morning not knowing how or where to breakfast; which threatens with beggary even the most wealthy of the community; which renders all men's affairs so uncertain; which, in numerous instances, makes life a borthen; and which, let the military geniuses think what they may, puts every institution in jeopardy.

To talk of the DUKE's generosity is, therefore, to suppose that we have all lost our memories, or. that those memories have become so short, that they do not carry us back beyond the space of five or six years. The great burthen of praise, is, however, the surprising most particularly kind and good | kindness of he Duke. He did so many "keind things," which word | was of short duration in the case "keind" these whiskered, pigeoneulogists pronounce in an accent, Gifford; and she does not forget, partaking of a puke and a lisp. They make me sick, at any rate. so very "keind" to poor Queen Caroline, at any rate, though one would have thought, that there were, in the history of his own life, several incidents, that might have induced so singularly a " keind" hearted man, to judge her with great lenity, even though he had believed her fully guilty of every thing laid to her charge. Having mentioned the late unfortunate Queen, I will also mention a letter which I have received intimation of my resolution, to notice this shameless praise heaped upon the Duke of York. She mentions, amongst other things, the fate which has befallen that unfortunate Queen. She notices that the triumph (if triumph of Castlereagh; she notices also, cropped and shoulder-padded the short-lived honours of Lord that it is not yet seven years since Lord Liverpool ordered her body He was so " keind a soul!" Not to be carried round the new road. This is the way in which a lady, writing in a manner as elegant as I ever saw, views the occurrences relating to the men who stood most prominent of all, in the prosecution of the unfortunate QUEEN. The Duke of York did not take a very prominent part upon that occasion. There was nothing peculiarly bitter in his hostility; but, a very large part of the nation will say, let the vile newspapers publish what they will, from a lady, in consequence of the that that was an occasion, on which for him to show that tender feeling, that genuine humanity, that gallant generosity which set self at defiance, and of all which these eulogists pretend the DUKE the most conspicuous enemies of had a store so prodigious.

To return, however, to his excessive " keindness," I have, when it were) arising from her death, I was able to overcome the effect sound of this word, which is pronounced by a drawing down of the under jaw and by a gape, nearly wide enough to show you the root of an ugly tongue; when I have been able to overcome the disgust excited by this sound and this sight, I have sometimes asked, " Do tell me what are your proofs of this keindness." "Oh! he "did so many keind things; he gave so many meritorious per-" sons good posts; got a regulation to enable old half-pay offi-44 cers to sell their commissions to " young ones; to enable half-pay officers to become parsons; to " submit to a 'call' to take upon " them the care of souls, and to " keep their half-pay at the same " them so comfortably off!"

millions who have to pay the of his own pocket the me it lies of the compound puke and lisp; taxes. His "keindness" conwhen I have been able to over- sisted, in fact, in enabling idlers come the disgust excited by the to live well upon the toil of embarrassed farmers and tradesmen and half-starving journeymen and labourers. Now, mind, I do not accuse the DUKE of doing this wilfully. On the contrary, I am quite convinced he was not doing it at all! I am quite convinced, that he never, in the whole course of his life, bestowed a thought on the effect of taxation; that he never reflected, and never thought it his duty to reflect, whence the money came, and that he thought, that if he, as far as related to himself and his office, distributed it pretty fairly, that was all he had to do with the matter. I am ready to acknowledge, that, from what I have heard, it always appeared to be his natural disposition to re-" time; he was so good! made lieve the distresses of the military "so many families happy: made people, and to gratify the wishes of any, or all them, who made In short, I always found, that their application to him. But, the Duke was " keind" to excess what great praise is this, when to every body, but to those toiling no part of the millions came out proved the discipline of the English army. Had the Duke been hired soldiers a body, wholly disa friend of mine, I should have tinct from the people; to disunite preferred to say of him, that he the two as much as possible; to greatly reduced the numbers of the English army. England did very well for a thousand years without such a thing as a standing army being known, or so much as thought of. It is said, that, the state of the world is altered, and that, if other nations have standing armies, England must have them, too. Those who say this, appear to forget that the other nations of Europe had all of them standing armies; that France, for instance, had a thundering standing army, over which so many victories were gained by the raw levies raised in England by the Norman kings.

York became Commander-incall it an improvement in disci- from the mass of the people, to

It is said, that he greatly im- pline, to do every thing that can possibly be done to make the create an army, which shall be precisely the reverse of what Judge Blackstone says is congenial to the English constitution: if you call this an improvement of the discipline of the army, then the Duke of York has been as great an improver as ever lived. I must, however, do him the justice to say, that all the items of this system of improvement originated in heads widely different from his. I am far from believing that he was the inventor of that military academy, which is stuck upon a wild heath, cut off from all communication with towns It is only since the DUKE of and villages, and in which you see little boys of ten or twelve Chief that there has appeared a years of age, dressed in military settled design to have a great uniform, to be trained to be offistanding army always in England, cers in the army, to be kept in a with all the dresses and manners sort of military discipline all the of a continental army. If you while, to be thus kept distinct obedience, except that due to a "state as that of a perpetual military chief, and thus to be " standing soldier, bred up to no made, to all intents and purposes, precisely that description of soldier, which Blackstone describes as wholly incompatible with civil liberty. "In a land of liberty," says he, "it is extremely dan-" gerous to make a distinct order " of the profession of arms. In " absolute monarchies, this is ne-" cessary for the safety of the " prince, and arises from the main " principle of their constitution, "which is that of governing by " fear: but, in free states, the " profession of a soldier, taken " singly, and merely as a profes-" sion, is justly an object of jea-" lousy. In these, no man should " take up arms, but with a view " to defend his country and its " laws: he puts not off the citizen, " when he enters the camp; but "it is because he is a citizen, " and would wish to continue so, "that he makes himself for a " while a soldier. The laws, "therefore, and constitution of "tion could be kept up between have no notion of any sort of " these kingdoms, know no such " other profession than that of "war; and it was not till the " reign of Henry VII. that the " Kings of England had so much " as a guard about their persons." ..... " Nothing "ought to be more guarded "against, in a free state, than " making the military power, " when such a one is necessary to " be kept on foot, a body too dis-" tinct from the people. LIKE "OURS, therefore, it should " wholly be composed of natural " subjects; it ought only to be " enlisted for a short and limited "time; the soldiers also should " live intermixed with the people; "no separate camp, NO BAR-" RACKS, no inland fortresses, " should be allowed. And per-" haps it might be still better, if, "by dismissing a stated number " and enlisting others at every re-" newal of their term, a circula" the army and the people, and constitution of England knows of mentaries, Book I. Chap. 13.

the citizen and the soldier be no such state as that of a soldier " more intimately connected to- bred up to no other station but " gether." - Blackstone's Com- that of war. And, England now beholds the military profession These are the principles which made a distinct and a most diswere inculcated by a lawyer, not tinct order; and she beholds a at all enthusiastic in the cause of most expensive and palace like freedom. He was Solicitor-Ge- academy or college, or whatever neral to the late Queen. Of course else they may call it, stuck up in the he was a thorough-paced courtier; midst of a wild and barren heath, vet, only fifty-seven years ago, these to hold little boys, who, very soon were the principles inculeated by after the clouts are taken from him. Precisely the contrary of them, are dressed in military unithese principles, have been the form, put under a species of miliorganization, the management, tary discipline, kept almost as the discipline, the control over, distinct from the people as if they the uses made of, and the whole were monks of La Trappe; "bred of the circumstances connected up to no other profession than that with the army and its character, of war;" and thus hurling conever since the DUKE of YORK be- temptuous defiance in the teeth of came Commander-in-Chief of that what Blackstone tells us to look army. Here we are told, that it upon as the essential principles is dangerous to public liberty to of the constitution. In this book make the profession of arms a dis- of our laws we are told, that the finct profession, and, that the army should never be a body too making of it a distinct profession, distinct from the people; that it is grounded on the principle of the should contain no foreigners; that necessity of governing by fear. the soldiers should live intermixed Here we are told, that the happy with the people; that there ought to be no BARRACKS, and none the discipline of the army; then calculated to keep the soldiers and the people in a constant state of jealousy of each other. Since the DUKE of YORK became Commander-in-Chief, every possible device seems to have been practised to keep the soldiers distinct from the people; and, as to foreigners, the law itself has, in innumerable instances, been commissions in natives.

imputing the invention of this change to the DUKE of YORK; but, if he be not to have this invention imputed to him, he is to have nothing imputed to him relative to the army. If by military discipline be meant a separating in impudence and insolence, the of the soldiers from the people; dressing them out in a manner to that the victories obtained by the as possible; introducing amongst are to be ascribed to the discithem every thing in imitation of continent; if this be to improve terers seem to forget that the vic-

of those crafty devices, which are it has been improved, and greatly improved, under the Duke of York; but if improvement of discipline mean an addition made to those qualities of the soldier, which render him more efficient for the purposes of war and more inoffensive and less dangerous to public liberty, when at home and not engaged in war: then I deny that the DUKE of YORK has improved wholly disregarded by giving them | the discipline of the English army. our army of It is pretty impudent to be sure; not more impudent perhaps, not As I said before, I am far from more insulting to the common sense of the nation, than any one of a dozen other things which these base flatterers bave said of the DUKE of YORK; not more impudent and insolent perhaps; but, certainly, nothing can well equal barefaced falsehood, the stupid lie, make them as unlike the people English army during the late war, pline taught by the Duke of the armies of the despots of the York! However, these base flatwhich we are now paying most dearly), were occasionally interspersed with defeats, or, as they were called about seven and twenty years ago, " negative successes," an appellation to which the achievements of this same great commander actually gave rise. I shall, by-and-bye, have to speak somewhat at length of these achievements, and then those who were born after the date of the achievements will have a full explanation, a practical and frequently repeated illustration of the phrase "negative success," in the obtaining of successes of which sort, his Royal Highness certainly surpassed any commander from the days of the Moabites to those of the Dutch.

But, as to the merit of these, " victories," gained by our army during the late war; I believe, that there would be a pretty fair balance (leaving out the American war) between the successes and " negative successes." As to the battle of Waterloo; as to the sur-tories, as they are called (and for render of Paris; as to the defeat, as it is called, of Buonaparte; as to all these, they were achieved. principally, not by the arms but by the bank notes of England: and, I have no scruple to say, that in the restoration of the Bourbons and of the ancient order of things. the bank directors had a thousand times more influence, than all our armies, all our ships, and all our commanders put together. did the bank directors seem to be blind to their merit in this respect, for they, in a representation to the Ministers, made in 1819, distinctly observed, that, while they joined the rest of the nation in applauding the conduct of our fleets and armies, bare justice to themselves compelled them to assert their own claim to a large share of the applause due to the successful transactions of thewar! I expressed my approbation of the claim, at the time when it was made. I said then, that the names of the bank directors, the picture of the old lady, ought to be inscribed on the triumphal triumphal arches, which are now being built, apparently, for him and the King.

The victories, as they are called, were generally things purchased with money. It was observed, by the various parcels of Germans and Russians which we hired, that it was very curious, that, when they gained a victory in company with us, we always claimed it as wholly belonging to us; and that, when they got beaten along with us, we always gave them the greatest share of the "negative success." Yes, very "curious be the most monstrous absurdity means unjust; for, we paid for the whole of the victory when we got one, and, when the success was of the negative kind, we might surely let our hirelings bear their portion of the honor. The bank directors were right, to a certainty: a very large share of the merits we include the war against Amecolumns, which it was then pro- of the war, and of all its conseposed to build; and I do hope quences, assuredly belongs to that the "Great Captain" will them; and, if I could have my will suffer the bank directors to be put of every man jack of them, or, if upon some part or other of the dead, the heirs or successors of every man jack of them, should receive, in the most ample degree. a reward suitable to those merits! Some people seem to despair of seeing that day of justice arrive: for my part I do not, and I trust that I shall live to record the event.

Besides, however, this sharing on the part of the bank directors. we must set the defeats against the victories, if we will be base enough, or, rather, so beastly stupid, as to ascribe the victories to the DUKE of YORK. It would perhaps," but, certainly by no that ever disgraced the lips of man, to ascribe the victories to him without ascribing to him the defeats also; and, if we do this, my real opinion is, that, including his own famous wars, of which I shall presently speak, our army was present, and took part in, if victories. So that, the argument, now, thank God, have much longer founded on the victories, would be to detain them. But, though some worth very little to his Royal of the nauseous parasites may Grace. The victories are taken to be a proof of the excellence of his Commander-in-Chief-ship; but, if the defeats exceed the victories in number, which I am sure is the fact; and if the victories themselves were purchased, AND REMAIN YET TO BE PAID this proof of the excellence of the York; and, who will not be ready to repeat the words of my motto, "they did flatter him with their mouth, and lied."

quite a treat, to be introduced into the time when that memorable rica, three defeats to every two [that field, from which I shall not not have been born, at the time of the memorable achievements of Dunkirk and the Helder, they must all have been born (or they have begun the trade of parasite at a very early age) at the time of the battles of CHIPPEWAH, PLATS-BURGH, the retreat before BALTI-FOR: if this should turn out to MORE, and the ever memorable be the case, what then becomes of battle of New ORLEANS, which exhibited to the world, in the discipline taught by the DUKE of bravery and conduct of GENERAL JACKSON and his volunteers, the finest instance of courage, of love of country, of devotion to justice, truth and honour, that ever, as These wondrous parasites far as I have witnessed, was either forget, or they never knew known since man was man. any thing about the history of the There may have been, in the hislate wars. Some of them, indeed, tory of the world, instances of may not have been born, at the these virtues equal to these, but it time when the Duke was in the is impossible for human nature to field himself; to such it will be a produce any thing to surpass it. treat, "especially if they be ad- There must have been some of dicted to rat-hunting," it will be the parasites, who were born at battle took place, yet, perhaps, enemies. Some of the parasites, there is this excuse for them, that however, must have known somethat affair was so completely thing of the American war; and, smothered up in England; so completely shut out of the gazette. as to all its main features, and passed over with such profound-victories of the army, they surely silence in Parliament, that this deluded, this wilfully blind and humbugged nation, scarcely ever knew that such a battle had ever taken place, though it decided, for ever, the character of the comread to mankind this useful, this all the perfections of military discipline, all the inventions of military science, all the vaunted rockets of CONGREVE, all the tacties taught by Prussia, Austria and France, all the stimulants of ribbons, medals, stars and military titles, are as dust in the balance. when weighed against the arms. the simple and rude arms of free men, animated with the resolution to preserve their country against the unhallowed invasions of its therefore, if they ascribed to the DUKE of YORK's teaching so large a part of what they called the ought to have ascribed to him a share as large of the disgraceful defeats of that war. Leaving out this war, however, why did the parasites stop at the transactions in Spain and France, into neither batants of both sides, though it of which the English army ever entered, until they had more than important, this heart-cheering one half of the people on their lesson, that all the arts of war; side? This was the case, observe, or else we were told the most abominable lies. As to Spain, it is notoriously true, that the people were for us almost to a man, and France was not entered, until, in fact, the tyrant who ruled it, had so harassed and disgusted the people, as to make them hail us as their allies.

> Good reason, therefore, as we are now going to see, was there for the parasites to go no further back, than what may be fairly called the fag end of the war, and | The tactics, practised at the horse to leave wholly unnoticed the proceedings of the English army, when in the field against the wich, and from Chatham to French, and when the French, LONDON; and then going by sea whatever might be the fact, were animated by what they deemed to MANCHESTER and BLACKBURN: the love of freedom. The parasites had, however, more than they require very little skill; not one good reason for this omission; much more than one could purpaigns of the war, was a history of little more than the defeats of our army; and another, and a stronger reason was, that, in these early campaigns, the English army was under the command of this very Duke of York in person. One would have thought, that no parasite, however barefaced, however profligate, however strongly the living pay for the dead, would have wholly overlooked, wholly sunk, this by far the most interesting part of the life of his hero! The office of Commander-in-Chief at home, was a thing of trifling im-guards, the marches and countermarches from PLYMOUTH to HARon the canal from BRENTFORD' these are things easily carried on; for, the history of the early cam- chase in the shape of a couple of clerks for eight or nine score pounds a year. But, when it comes to commanding an army in the field: when it comes to the facing of brave enemies, and particularly such as are animated by the love of liberty; when it comes to a struggle against such armies as France poured forth during the first ten animated by the desire of making vears of her late wars, then the military merit of the opponent is put to the test. The Duke's merit was put to this test; and, let us, then, taking for our guide the page, not of impartial history, but of history most partial on his side: portance, compared to the office taking this history for our guide, of Commander-in-Chief abroad. advancing no fact as from our-which even parasites could not smother, and that, too, at a time, treason to publish any fact contrary to the wishes of those who had the guiding of all things in the nation; when it was dangerous to be even suspected of a desire to make disagreeable truths known to the public: taking for our guide, I say, the cowed down ANNUAL REGISTER of those times, let us try the military merits of the Duke of York even by this test.

In the year 1793, war having the English army, one of the finest and best appointed that the Eng-selves, and drawing no conclusion and putting down the French reother than the conclusion which volution. It is curious enough, evidently proceeds from the pre- that the Prince of SAXE COBOURC. mises; taking, in short, for our the father of him, to whom we guide, a statement of those facts, have now the honour to pay 50,000l. a year, commanded the Austrian army upon this occasion. when it was almost to be guilty of All these armies united, had taken, in August, 1793, the town of Va-LENCIENNES, on the confines of France; and all was rejoicing in England, the men got drunk with toasting the DUKE of YORK, while their wives ran them in debt, to vie with their neighbours in sticking up candles to demonstrate their loyalty, and, as was the fashion of that day, their attachment to their "GOD AND THEIR KING," I being by no means certain, that they did not put the king first. The DUKE, been begun against the French, though intent enough, perhaps, on putting down "republicanism" and "atheism," did not altogether lish ever sent forth, furnished, as forget the shop. He knew that our armies always are, even to DUNKIRK was a famous place for prodigality, was sent forth under trafficking; and, therefore, in the the Duke of York, to join the way of gratitude, I suppose, for the Imperial, and other German praises which he had received, on armies, with a view of attacking account of the conquest of VALEN-CIENNES, which, by-the-bye, was, DEN came suddenly and unexpectaccording to the principle above edly to their aid and rescued laid down, ascribed wholly to the them. The historian says that Duke; in gratitude, I suppose, for the Duke saved his MILITARY this, his ROYAL HIGHNESS wished CHEST, took care of the money, to do some signal service to the but was compelled to abandon his shop; and, therefore, knowing heavy artillery, camp equipage, that the shop would be very ammunition, and of course all the much pleased, to possess such a rest of the things, to an enormous trafficking place as DUNKIRK, amount, so necessary to the effihe quitted his loving allies (all ciency of his army. There aptook with him) in order to capture more hasty or helter-skelter reof his undertaking, that handker- Convention satisfied with GENErepresenting the DUKE with a crown of laurel on his head, had been actually printed at that hellbut the Hanoverians, whom he pears hardly ever to have been a this town. Which capture was treat; and, which is curious deemed to be so certain a result enough, so little were the French chiefs, celebrating the event, and RAL HOUGHARD, and who, they insisted, ought to have flung the DUKE of YORK and his army into the sea; that they brought him to hole MANCHESTER, before the trial, condemned him to die, and news arrived of his having been put him to death. Now, though driven from before the place, with the French Convention consisted a flea so loudly buzzing in his ear, of violent men, they would not that the Hanoverian General have put a General to death, unand our DUKE of CAMBRIDGE less there had been some ground "were, for a short time, in pos- for the accusation against him. session of the enemy!" In other In short, we must believe that words, they were prisoners, till a Houchard did not do his duty; General of the name of WALMO- and, then we must ask, what would have been the fate of the English war was carried on in Flanders, prize.

After this affair, the Duke reioined the Austrians; and the first Duke should or should not be of war was held to settle this point; but it was of such importance that it could not be settled this point, the French were pre- towards Holland, sustaining defeat paring for a furious attack upon after defeat, routing after routing, the whole of them. During the loss after loss, hunted from fortress army if he had done his duty; the parties having for them, someand that will suggest to us to ask times victory and sometimes defurther, what must have been the feat; but the latter generally fell judgment of him who undertook, to the lot of the allies, of which and what the conduct of him who the English army formed a part, had the execution of this enter- arising, the historians observe, in some part, at least, from the before mentioned dispute about precedence. At last, VALENstep was to settle a point of vast ciennes was abandoned, though importance, namely, whether the fortified anew by the Austrians, and with it such immense under the command of the Aus- quantities of stores and protrian General! A grand council visions of every sort, that were hardly ever before seen in one fortress. Besides these, an immense military chest fell into the without a negotiation between the hands of the French, who now courts of London and Vienna, pressed the allied army with so by whom it was finally agreed much vigour, that they compelled that the Drke should not be und them finally to separate, each der an Austrian commander army seeking its own safety in reunless the emperor came to com- treat, or rather in hasty heltermand in person. While these skelter flight. The DUKE of YORK high blooded gentry were settling and his army now hastened away former part of the year 1794, the to fortress, and from some which had never before opened their | Never have I read of the suffergates to an enemy, and were, till ings of any thing that bore the now, deemed to be impregnable. name of army, to equal the suffer-Winter was coming on apace, the ings of this body of men. Withclimate was cold, the inhabitants out food, without drink, without they embarked, or, rather, the rembeing pelted about by the waves, in the bitter cold month of January, landed on the banks of the Humber, and at other places, whither they had been driven, and where, like Job's messengers, they told their dismal tale.

hostile in their hearts, when the scarcely a rag to cover them or a English army took shelter in the shoe to their foot; their backs celebrated fortress of NIMUEGEN. | constantly exposed to the bullets Here, however, in a fortress which of the French, and suffering every had always been deemed fit to privation that imagination can constand a siege for a year, this un- ceive, frozen to death by thousands, happy army found no safety. The their women and children left dead indefatigable and implacable re- strewed by the sides of the road, publicans soon came up, with the these unhappy creatures came view to besiege and take the whole home to England to tell their of them. Leaving behind them a dismal tale and to put upon relarge part of the remnant of their | cord upon the minds of all who heavy stores and implements of heard them, one consequence, at war, they traversed the Dutch least, of an undertaking, bottomed, territories, with the French close as we all well know, in an avowed at their heels, and, at last, reached desire to prevent those which were the Duchy of Bremin; whence called French principles from penetrating into England! In other nant of them embarked, and, after words, to prevent those changes, those very changes, which must even now come, or which must leave their place to be supplied by events beyond all measure more dreadful than those which could possibly have arisen, if even that had taken place for which the re- the Commander-in-Chief might formers are accused of having be still a very good General; and wished.

parasites, and by those who have the evidence to prove, that any sold their columns to the parasites, that there might be no fault be a bad General. in the DUKE of YORK; that an army may suffer defeat after de- for the memory of this greatly feat, and run before an enemy from fortress to fortress, as a rab- the history of this campaign stopbit runs from burrow to burrow ped here. It does not stop here: before a weazel or a ferret that common justice will not let it stop take a grib at her at every resting here; but will add, will tell that place, and that still the Commander-in-Chief may be a very good Commander-in-Chief. Mark, however, how this works: if there REMAIN TO PARTAKE OF be no demerit in such a series of THE DANGERS AND SUFdefeat, under every variety of time | FERINGS OF THIS UNand place, there can be, under no FORTUNATE ARMY! The circumstances whatever, any me- reader of the present day will rit in victory. Say that the DUKE hardly believe the fact : the men of York might be a very good who have been born within the General, though his army (who last thirty years, and who have were the finest, mind, and best been stunned by the bawlings of appointed that the world ever the parasites, will hardly think it saw) get thus hunted about, hacked possible, but the fact is, that when and trodden to pieces: say that the cold weather was coming on, then let me ask these " keind" But, it may be said by the parasites, where they will find man upon earth can by possibility

It would be fortunate, however, eulogized Commander-in-Chief, if cajoled public, in whose ears the lofty praises of this Duke have been rung, that HE DID NOT all this might happen, and that and when there could appear a chance of nothing but bare es- hungry stomachs, and of here a cape, and that, too, by the terrible exertions of hardihood and valour, which this remnant of this army afterwards displayed; when that moment arrived, he who had caused two Governments to negotiate, rather than yield a point of punctilio as to the right of command, quitted that army, of the command of which he had been, and not unjustly, so proud, and left them under a Foreign Com-MANDER, to be led to the water's edge, and thence to escape, after every species of suffering, mental as well as bodily, of which human beings are capable. Seriously, I say, that, when I think of what he must have felt, while sitting in a double doored, double windowed, carpetted and cushioned room in London; when I think of what his thoughts must have been, what his feelings must have been, while sitting in such room, and reading of the dreadful sufferings of the remnant of his comrade leaving his comrade to perish behind him, here a husband leaving his wife, here a mother leaving her child, which was the case in hundreds of hundreds of instances; when I reflect upon what his feelings must have been, I sincerely say, that that would have been enough; but, the parasites provoke an answer, justice to the country demands it, circumstances have given me the power, and duty to my country commands me to exert that power.

If there should be found a parasite so completely destitute of all shame, so wonderfully gifted in the way of impudence and of profligate sycophancy as to say, that the Duke was, at the time here referred to, a young man, and that it was his first essay, I answer, that he was pretty nearly thirty years of age, and that he had been studying the art of war all his life time, having lived sevearmy, of their lacerated bodies, ral years in Prussia, which was their frozen extremities, their looked upon as the school of milihistory of the DUKE's wars, unfortunately for his parasites, furnish an answer, and a most complete answer, to this miserable excuse: for, in 1799, the Duke had another army put under his command, another English army, best possible manner, which was to be joined by a Russian and a Hanoverian army for the purpose of driving the French out of Holland, and for restoring the Stadtholder to his authority. The DUKE was Commander-in-Chief of this army. In the month of September, the fighting began. Abercrombie and Dundas, and many others whom the base news-" flower of the English nobility." There was a maritime expedition fleet surrendered without striking WERE PRISONERS IN ENGa blow, and came over as quietly LAND, and that, on that condi-

tary commanders. However, the as pussey, and were safely moored, I believe it was, at Torbay! But, to drive the devils of republicans out of Holland was another man's matter, and that matter the Duke had to manage. It is useless to waste time in a detail of the battles that ensued: the result beappointed and provided in the ing the only thing of any interest. and that result was, that, at the end of about thirty days from the commencement of the military operations, in spite of the flower of the " English nobility," the Duke and his army were compelled to retreat to the edge of the land, and that he there signed a capitulation, by which he rescued The Duke had under him Generals | the bodies of that army from capture, at the least, and, perhaps, from total destruction. The conpapers of that day called the ditions of this capitulation were very simple: the Duke agreed that there should be SURRENaccompanied with this, which was DERED TO THE FRENCH intended to get possession of the EIGHT THOUSAND OF Dutch fleet. This latter object THE SEAMEN, WHETHER was easily effected, for the Dutch FRENCH OR DUTCH, WHO tion, the Duke's army should be he best merits that post who has permitted to go out of Holland, safe in body, and as cheerful in mind as circumstances might admit of! Thus ended this celebrated campaign of our late Commander-in-Chief. If any thing could have added; if there had been a possibility of adding to the ment of his Majesty has placed humiliation of the Duke and his "flower of English nobility," that humiliation was at hand in the curious and interesting fact, that the Duke and the "flower," he a prince of the blood royal, and the "flower" having amongst them PRINCE WILLIAM of GLOUCESTER, Were defeated by, and the DUKE capitulated with, the French GENE-RAL BRUNE, who had been apprenticed to a PRINTER at Limoges, and the Dutch Ge-NERAL DANDAELLS, who had been apprenticed to a BAKER at Amsterdam. All I shall say more is this, that his MAJESTY, in the order, appointing the DUKE of Wellington Commander-in-Chief to the army, has told us, that led that army to glory. If I approved of standing armies and Commanders-in-Chief, I should agree in this sentiment of his MAJESTY: as the thing is. I leave the parasites up to the chins in that dilemma in which this sentithem; and thus I take my leave of this subject.

WM. COBBETT.

P. S.— If the reader should happen to know SIR HERBERT TAYLOR, who has, in his history of the DUKE's last illness, discovered such a profound sense of religion; if the reader should happen to know this gentleman, I should be obliged to him just to ask him, what were the BOOKS, which chiefly composed the library of his late Royal Patron! That the Whole Duty of Man, that BAXTER'S Call, and TAYLOR'S (perhaps SIR HERBERT's father) Holy Living and Dying; that these works, and other such evidences of the piety of the deceased, made part of the Duke's library, is to be supposed as a matter of course. But, a Correspondent has informed me that there were OTHER books, in greater number and variety, than in the collection of any man in England! As to PRINTS, there were, I am told, a VAST VARIETY in all shapes and sizes, and representing, too, other things besides the Crucifixion, the celebration of the Lord's Supper, the Birth of Jesus Christ, the Descent of the Dove, and so forth; these the Royal and pious personage had, of course; but I am told that there was a great number of others, which, if SIR HERBERT will be pleased to add a list of them, to that of the books, would form a pretty little tail-piece to his history.

AMERICAN KIDNEY BEANS.

I have two sorts of these, the finest that ever were in England; one of them the very earliest that I ever saw; and the seed, in both cases, so ripe, sound, and excellent, that a large crop from it is certain.—One sort is Yellow, the other Speckled; both are dwarfs.—Price—17s. a bushel, and smaller quantities in proportion, with something added for paper, string, and trouble.—They are sold at he Office of the Register, No 183, Fleet Street, and may be sent, by order, to any part of the country.

A Young Man, twenty-two years of age, who has resided during the last four years in Paris, and has made himself proficient in the French language, wishes for employment in teaching French, in a Gentleman's family. To his knowledge of French, he begs leave to add that of Latin, and also his capacity to give instruction in the different branches of Philosophy, excepting that of Physic.—Any Gentleman in want of such a person, will please to apply (if by letter, post paid) at the Office of the Register.

FOR SALE,

At the Office of the Register, the first 20 Volumes of the REGISTER, half-bound in Russia. Price Seven Pounds.

ALDERNEY COWS.

JAMES ROBERTS, of Abbotston. near Alresford, in Hampshire, has for sale, Cows and Heifers imported from the Islands. They are of the best breeds, selected with great care, and the Advertizer will warrant them to be what they shall be described to the purchaser. He sends them under the care of his own people, to any part of England; and he has the satisfaction to know, that at nearly three hundred miles from his home, Cows and Heifers sent thither by him have arrived safe and done well. Those Gentlemen and Ladies who live at a distance, and who have no other means of communication, will please to direct their letters as JAMES ROBERTS. above.

MARKETS.

Average Prices of CORN throughout England, for the week ending March 30.

Per Quarter.

		8.	d.		s.	d.
Wheat		56	1	Rye	41	3
Barley		37	1	Beans	47	6
Oats		30	8	Pease	49	5

Total Quantity of Corn returned as Sold in the Maritime Districts, for the week ended March 30.

Qrs.	Qrs.
Wheat 36,419	Rye 189
Barley 18,277	Beans 2,251
Oats 13,589	Pease 667

Corn Exchange, Mark Lane.

Quantities and Prices of British Corn, &c. sold and delivered in this Market, during the week ended Saturday, March 31.

	,	-		-
	Qrs.		£.	s.	d.		d
Wheat	4,993	for	14,678	10	6	Average, 58	1
Barley	4,139		8,082	6	8	39	-1
Oats	3,988		6,396	19	8	32	1
Rye	15		29	2	9	38	1
Beans	1,147		2,593	17	11
Pease	541		1,309	2	3	48	4

Friday, April 6.—The supplies of Grain this week are moderate, and there is again a good quantity of Flour. The Wheat trade is very dull, and hardly supports last Monday's prices. Barley is unaltered. Beans and Pease continue as reported on Monday. There is very little doing in the Oat trade this morning, and prices of last market day are not supported. The Flour trade very dull.

JAMES ROBERTS.

Monday, April 9 .- The arrivals of English Grain during the past week were moderate: there was however a good addition made to the quantity of Oats, by the Irish and Foreign supplies, and of Flour the return was again tolerably large. To this morning's market there are few additional arrivals from the adjacent counties, and not much Spring Corn from parts more distant, but Foreign vessels continue to arrive with Oats. Prime samples of Wheat are scarce, and command attention at last week's prices; all other sorts are so very dull, that to effect sales reduced rates must be complied with.

Barley, Beans, and Pease, each find a slow sale at the terms last quoted. The weather being remarkably favourable for Spring operations, occasions our London dealers to purchase very sparingly, and on Friday the trade was reported generally 1s. per quarter lower, but today there was an improved demand from country buyers, and the terms of this day se'nnight were nearly obtained for such samples as are sweet and good. The Flour trade continues heavy.

Price on board Ship as under.

- TOT 1		BANDO SIDE	THE STATE OF THE S		Mark Townson Co. 1 at
Flour.	per	sack		.46s.	- 50s.

Price of Bread.—The price of the 4lb. Loaf is stated at 9d. by the full-priced Bakers.

order, to any part of the country.

Account of Wheat, &c. arrived in the Port of London, from April 2 to April 7, both inclusive.

Qrs.	mar d'	Qrs.
Wheat 4,258	Tares	466
Barley 2,827	Linseed	15
Malt 8.429	Rapeseed.	1-
Oats 4,608	Brank	8
Beans 602	Mustard	34
Flour 8,093	Flax	_
Rye 440	Hemp	218
Pease 942	Seeds	_
the state of the s	NITTE OF Foreign.—Wheat, 480; Barley, 570; Oats, 7,231; and Beans, 1,773 qrs.

Monday, April 9.—The arrivals from Ireland last week were, 1,800 firkins of Butter, and 1,302 bales of Bacon; and from Foreign Ports, 3,222 casks of Butter.

HOPS.

Price of Hops, per Cwt. in the Borough.

Monday, April 9.—There has been rather more inquiry for Hops during the week, but with no variation in prices.

Maidstone, April 5.—The last week has brought the Hops forward, and they are coming out of the ground very fast, but the young shoots at present appear rather weakly. Nothing whatever doing in the trade.

Worcester, April 4.—On Saturday, 103 Pockets of Hops were weighed; the demand equalled the supply, and fine samples fully maintained the late prices.—It appears from an Official Return, that in the year ending 5th January, 1827, the quantity of Hops exported to Foreign parts was 3,960 cwt. The imports amounted to 1,874 cwt.

SMITHFIELD.

Monday, April 9. - On Friday there was a great heaviness in the trade for both Beef and Mutton, and lower terms were of necessity submitted to. For Lamb the demand was brisk, and all that were choice reached the top currency of Monday last. The market to-day is not overdone with anything. The best Beef makes about a crown; but the trade is remarkably flat in other respects: and many middling Beasts, notwithstanding the supply is so moderate, will remain unsold. Sheep being short in number, there was some animation among the buyers in the early part of the day, but towards the close of the market, the demand materially slackened, and the morning's prices could not be obtained. Prime polled Sheep in the wool made 5s. 4d., and best Downs 5s. 6d. The supply of Lamb not being great, the currency of this day se'nnight was fully supported.

Per Stone of 8 pounds (alive).

				d
Beef	3	8 to	5	0
Mutton .	4	4 -	- 5	6
Veal	5	0 -	- 6	0
Pork	4	6 -	- 5	4
Lamb .	6	0 -	- 7	0
Beasts 2,	3511	Sheep		14,720
Calves	107	Pigs .		112

NEWGATE, (same day.)

NEWGATE,	(8	ame	day.	)
Per Stone of	8 p	oun	ds (de	ead).
£			5.	d.
Beef	5	4	to 4	4
Mutton	4	0	-4	8
Veal	3	4	- 5	4
Pork			- 5	8
LEADENHA!	Thi	4,750	SUDE:
Ter Stone of	. 5.	d.	. s.	d.

	d. s.	d.
Beef 3	0 to 4	4
Mutton 3
Veal 3	8-5	4
Pork 4	0 - 5	4

the tiems

ing och .

POTATOES.

SPITALFIELDS	, pe	r To	on.	4.10
1.	8.	4	1.	-
Ox-Nobles4	0	to	0	0
Middlings2	10	_	0	0
Chats 2
Common Red 4	0	-	0	0
Onions, Os. OdOs.	. 0d	. pe	er b	ash.

Borough,	per	Ton.	. "
A. The heat single			l.	8.
Ox-Nobles 3	10
Middlings2
Chats2	0	-	0	0
Common Red 3

HAY and STRAW, per Load.

Smithfield	-Hay 80s.	to	1158.
1700	Straw 40s.	to	458
CT Colo	Clover. 100s.	to	140s.
St. James's	Hay 84s.	to	128s.
To The	Straw 42s.	to	488.
	Clover. 120s.	to	135s.
Whitechapel	-Hay 80s.	to	115s.
1	Straw 36s.	to	428,
	Clover 90s.	to	1355.

AVERAGE PRICE OF CORN, sold in the Maritime Counties of England and Wales, for the Week ended March 30, 1827.

karada un abuda kalbanan	Wh	eat.	Bar	lev.	O	ats.
	s.	d.	s.		8.	d.
London*	59	6	38	7	32	11
Essex			.36	3	31	0
Kent	56	2	39	1	31	8
Sussex	55	6	.41	0	. 30	2
Suffolk	55	3	.34	7	30	3
Cambridgeshire	52	2	.34	9	26	1
Norfolk	55	0	.34	10	32	7
Lincolnshire	55	8	.39	1	28	.1.
Yorkshire				6		8
Durham	.55	3	.44	0	33	3
Northumberland	.53	4	.36	10	33	7
Cumberland	.62	5	.38	3	35	8
Westmoreland	.62	10	.45	4	38	1
Lancashire	.62	1	.39	6	34	4
Cheshire						1
Gloucestershire	.58	7	.43	8	38	2
Somersetshire			.41	3	29	10
Monmouthshire					. 0	0
Devonshire	.56	0	.37	5	.27	4
Cornwall	.57	7	.38	1		0
Dorsetshire	.55	7	27	0	.32	5
Hampshire	.56	1,000	.38	6	.34	8
North Wales	62	A	AA	10	24	0
South Wales	.57	8	.40	7	.25	7

* The London Average is always that of the Week preceding.

Liverpool, April 3.—Since Tuesday se'nnight the imports of Grain have been very light, the demand has been improving throughout the week, and sales have been made of Wheat, Oats, and Barley to a moderate extent, at an increase in value for the former 2d. to 3d. per 70 lbs., and ½d. to 1d. per bushel on the two latter. We are still without arrivals of White Pease. In prices of Flour and Oatmeal no variation.

Imported into Liverpool, from March 27th to April 3d, 1827, inclusive: —Wheat, 3,202; Barley, 96; Oats, 6,777; Malt, 25; Beans, 600; Pease, 62 quarters. Flour, 130 sacks, per 280 lbs.

Bristol, April 7.—We have but little doing in our Corn markets, except for good Barley, which sells freely at a further advance of 1s. per quarter since this day week; the supply of prime Barley continues limited.—Wheat, from 6s. to 7s. 6d.; Barley, 4s. 6d. to 6s.; Beans, 5s. 6d. to 8s.; Oats, 2s. 12d. to 4s.; and Malt, 6s. to 8s. Sd. per bushel, Imperial. Flour, Seconds, 3Ss. to 43s. per bag.

Guildford, April 7.—Wheat, new, for mealing, 14l. to 16l. 15s. per load. Barley, 38s. to 48s.; Oats, $3s. to 44s.; Beans, 54s. to 58s.; Pease, grey, 60s. to 64s.; ditto, boilers, 62s. to 64s. per quarter.

Horncastle, April 7.—The supply of samples of Grain to-day was small, prices nearly the same as last week, except Oats, which were something lower.—Wheat, 50s. to 56s.; Barley, 40s. to 42s.; Oats, 28s. to 35s.; Pease, 60s.; Beans, 55s. to 60s.; and Rye from 40s. to 42s. per quarter.

Ipswich, April 7.—We had to day a remarkably small supply of all Corn for the time of the year. Wheat sold much the same. Barley was 1s. per quarter dearer. Prices as follow:—Wheat, 52s. to 62s.; Barley, 36s. to 41s.; Beans, 44s. to 47s. per quarter; and Pease, none.

Manchester, April 7.—The supplies of all kinds of Grain, &c. have been very limited during the week, but fully adequate to the demand, and prices have been on the decline. Our market to-day was but thinly attended, and, from the drooping, dull state of Wakefield market yesterday, the price of the best Wheat declined about 2d., and inferior full 4d. per bushel of 70 lbs. from the prices of last week. Oats dull sale, at a decline of \(\frac{1}{2}d\). to 1d. per bushel of 45 lbs. Flour is 1s per sack lower, and dull sale at the decline. In Barley, Beans, Pease, and Malt, no alteration.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, April 7.—There was again a good supply of Wheat from the farmers, but very little coastwise, at this day's market, and prices were nearly the same as last week. Rye continues in demand. We have had some arrivals of Barley from Norfolk, which is selling slowly at prices quoted. Malt rather more in demand. The supply of Oats was not large, but it seemed to be equal to the demand, and prices were the same as last week.

Reading, April 7.—We had a fair supply of Wheat, the quality of which was again rough; it met a heavy sale, but the best realized the same prices as last week, while inferior qualities were 1s. lower. Old, 57s. to 67s. New, 52s. to 65s. per quarter by the Imperial measure. There was a very short supply of Barley, which met a very ready sale at an advance of 2s. per quarter. Oats were also a short quantity and 1s. dearer. There were very few Bean's and very little demand, prices the same as last week. In Pease no alteration. Samples of Indian Wheat were exhibited in the market, they were stated to weigh from 56 to 58 lbs. per bushel; 5,000 quarters last week arrived at Bristol; 37s. 6d. per quarter was the price asked, to which carriage from Bristol must be added. We did not hear of any sales being effected to-day.

COUNTRY CATTLE AND MEAT MARKETS, &c.

Horncastle, April 7.—Beef, 9s. per stone of 14 lbs.; Mutton, 8d.; Pork, 8d.; and Veal, 9d. to 10d. per lb.

Manchester Smithfield Market, April 4.—The supply of Beasts and Sheep to this day's market was small; the dealers demanded and obtained $\frac{1}{2}d$, per lb. advance on fat Mutton, but the lean sorts were heavy in sale, although the quantity was much less than for some time past. Pork has undergone an improvement of $\frac{1}{2}d$, per lb. since this day week, and ready sale at the advance, it being the cheapest meat. Veal the same as last week. As to the few Lambs at market, they were taken away ansold, as being considered not fat enough to kill.—Beef, 5d. to 8d.; Mutton, 7d. to 9d.; Veal, 5d. to 6\frac{1}{2}d.; and Pork, 5d. to 6d. per lb. sinking offal.

Norwich Castle Meadow, April 7.—The supply of fat Cattle to this day's market was large, and the sale for them slow at 7s. 6d. to 8s. per stone of 14 lbs. sinking offal; the show of Scots was large, some few of a good sort, at about 4s. per stone of 14 lbs., of what they will weigh when fat; only a lot or two of poor Shorthorns at 3s. 3d.; Cows and Calves, and Homebreds, continue a flat sale from the difficulty of procuring keep for them.—Meat: Beef, 6½d. to 8½d.; Veal, 6d. to 8d.; Mutton, 6d. to 7½d.; Lamb, 9½d.; and Pork, 6d. to 8d. per lb.

At Morpeth Market, April 4th, there were a good many Cattle and Sheep; there being a great demand, the former met with ready sale at an advance in price. Beef, from 7s. to 7s. 9d.; Mutton, 7s. to 8s. 6d. per stone, sinking offal.

very breden deem, the week, but cally also out the thirty and a second, and priors have been a second and priors have been and the second as the secon

y circ or the large Where the four about it and define that Ask per bushed of its large in the large for the large in the Alternative per Paras, A and V.—Prince was so and samply of Wilcon from the larrones, but very little transferre, as the distributed and prince several prince several prince several prince bad generally the same for the very little concentration of the larronest of the same several prince of the conferred and the several very little several to be several to the same and prince and prince and prince and prince and prince and prince as were the same as Message, April 7.—We bed a fair supply of William, the quality of which was again words; it rost a best value, and the host real-ord slot action prices as her wasts, while interior qual-ors were it looper. Old, 57s, to 67s, New 4.50s, to 65s, was quarter by the Imperial we come. There was a very short supply of Harley, Which not a very really sale at an advance of action quester; Outs wire also a short quality and is, dearen. There were very for the decrease and very for the action of the work.

the decime. In Parky, Seats Peace, and market, they were stated to write from 20 to 25 de, per bashel; 2,000 quarters has work trained at finited; 25c oct. but quarters has work trained at finited; 25c oct. but quarters work to be suffered to the paint of the period of the post hour of the period of the post hour of